PUMPS.

- No. 3. Pitcher spout cistern pump, open top, iron cylinder bored and polished $2.50
No. 25. Combined force and cistern pump, highly polished 3 inch brass cylinder, brass stuffing boxes, seals and piston rods $5.00
No. 321. An open top, low-priced, lift pump, good for wells up to 50 ft. Having a large reservoir, they discharge a smooth, steady stream. Size of pipe 1 1/4 inch. $8.00
No. 6. Close top anti-freezing well pump, standards 46 inches high. Close top keeps dust and dirt out. Cylinders 3 x 10 ins., capacity of stroke 1-5 gallon. $10.00
No. 10. Same as above, fitted with inside cap cylinder, suitable for bored wells $12.00
No. 104. Anti-freezing stock pump, 4 inch brass lined cylinder, with glass valve seat, tapped for 2-inch pipe. This has been a big seller with us, and has always been very satisfactory. $15.00
No. 48. Double acting, anti-freezing lift and force pump. The double cylinders are of brass, one on each side of the pipe, making perfect balance, and thus reducing the labor of pumping. $17.00
No. 12 x 12. D. A. force pump with 2 1/2 inch glass valve seat cylinder, tapped for 1 1/4 inch pipe. This is a complete shallow and deep well pump, and is adapted to all kinds of wells. Can be used in bored well of 5-8 inches and up. This we can recommend most strongly. $18.00
No. 521 x 16. Same as above, excepting that this one is fitted with a 3 1/2 inch cylinder and tapped for 1 1/2 inch pipe. $18.00

RED JACKET PUMPS. We could use a couple of columns of this paper to describe this line, but would rather you would call and see some of them at our store. They are not a low priced line, but are well worth what is asked for them. The numbers we are carrying are worth, each $25.00

Conference Urge Keener Interest in Politics

FAVOR COMPULSORY PRAYER

On Monday the laymen brought in and carried the following resolution:

Resolved that the laymen of our church be urged to take a keen interest in the politics of our country; that they attend the primaries to the end that men of good character be brought out as candidates for the legislature, and that the machine in politics ceases to rule so that we may have representative government in truth as well as in name. These voters be independent of party and their support be withdrawn from Governments that ignore the great moral issues of the day, such as temperance, social evil, gambling, Sabbath observance.

It is recommended that the above resolution of the Laymen's Association of this conference be read to our congregations.

The conference elected representatives to the general conference at Vancouver in September as follows:—Ministers, Aldridge, Riddell, Huettner, Kerby, Buchanan, Harrison, Barner, Perry, Farrell. Alternates: Powell, Lewis, Johnson.

Laymen: W. G. Hunt, Dr. A. M. Scott, Calgary; E. Michener, M.P.P., Red Deer; Hon. W. H. Cushing, Calgary; J. F. Fowler, Wetaskiwin; Dr. Galbraith, Lethbridge; James Spence, Red Deer; P. E. Butchart, W. W. Chown, Edmonton. Alternates: G. W. Smith, Red Deer; A. T. Cushing, Edmonton; F. G. Norwood, Calgary.

The conference pronounced in favor of making the reading of the Lord's Prayer compulsory in Alberta primary schools, having the commandment hung up in the schools, and the reading of selected passages of scripture by the teacher.

The committee co-operating with the other denominations was re-appointed.

The conference adopted the report of the memorial committee, which recommended that a practical course of training for Sunday school work, to include pedagogy, be provided for the Laymen's Association argued also that probationers be trained in sociology.

Rev. J. B. Howard was recommended for the superannuation list and the Rev. Mr. Milford for ordination for special work. Fifteen young men were received on probation.

The scheme for a conference mission band of the Temperance and Moral Reform League of Alberta, announced that a local option campaign, for the eight license districts of the province, would be carried on in November of this year.

Rev. A. C. Farrell, of Medicine Hat, has been appointed to the theological faculty of Alberta College, Edmonton.

Red Deer U.F.A.

The regular meeting of the Red Deer branch of the United Farmers of Alberta was held at the Fire Hall Saturday afternoon, June 4th, President James Bower in the chair. There was a fair attendance of members. The question of hog wire has been solved, the president reported, by the U.F.A. taking the agency for the Page wire fencing for the province thus getting the lowest rate possible. The contract for twine was awarded Mr. Parke, of the Massey-Harris Co., with his Plymouth brand, at $9.75 per hundred of 550 feet. F. W. Galbraith was appointed secretary for the balance of the year. The meeting adjourned to the first Saturday in July.

Bye-Elections

The bye-elections will be held June 20th. Premier Sifton will run in Vermilion. Ex-Judge Mitchell, attorney-general, stand for election in Medicine Hat. A. J. McLean, provincial secretary, will contest Lethbridge district. Duncan Marshall, minister of agriculture in the new cabinet, does not have to stand another election.

ALBERTA CENTRAL RAILWAY

Final Grade Surveys Being Pushed

Everything points to an early start on construction of the Alberta Central. The final grade stakes are being placed and preliminary work is going on with a view to operations in the near future.

We have it on good authority that the work to be done this year will be between the two crossings of the Red Deer river. The crossing to the west will be some seven miles south-west of town, and the crossing to the east of Red Deer will be about thirty miles south-east as the crow flies. Owing to the heavy task of building these bridges the work cannot be done until next winter and the line built to the river will allow of the carrying of the heavy bridge irons and other material at a nominal cost and great convenience to the contractors.

The fact that the work will proceed both east and west of Red Deer will be good news to the citizens and will strengthen the belief that the line will be pushed to completion in the near future. The line west of the river may be graded and brushed this year but it is not likely that any great amount of steel will be laid.

Overall Factory Contract

The Gaetz Manufacturing Co., Ltd., have let the contract for the new factory to Hugh Clark and work will commence at once. The building will be a splendid brick structure on a strong concrete foundation so that another story can be added as the business increases. The building will cost $5,500 and will be completed as quickly as possible. Two new hands were added to the staff last week and still it is hard to keep up with the orders. So heavy has the business become that the raw material is ordered by the car lot, a car costing the enormous sum of $10,000 alone. The success of this enterprise is due in a large measure to the energy and business ability of L. M. Gaetz, the general manager.

Tag Day Saturday.

Dominion Day Sports

To the Editor, Sir—I see a mild reference in the News as to the advisability of celebrating the coming July in a becoming manner, and a notice in the Advocate calling a meeting of the sports committee for this week, and am only surprised that the matter has not been taken up sooner. Some four or five years ago the greater number of our citizens and friends from the surrounding country were taking the trains, north and south, seeking recreation and amusement in neighboring towns and the question being asked why these people could not be furnished amusement in Red Deer and induced to stay at home, some of the patriotic citizens, among them Mr. John T. Moore, there and then determined that Red Deer would provide one day's recreation in the year, and that day would be the 1st. of July, and from that time on the matter was ever kept in mind until early in the summer of the following year, when a meeting was called, committee appointed, and preparations made for the proper celebration of this day, with the result that Red Deer had one of the most enjoyable days in its history, everyone feeling the happier and better for it. As "Citizens" states in the News, the primary object in holding the day of sports in Red Deer was for the purpose of entertaining our friends from the country who for twelve months in the year give to the town their trade and patronage, and surely it is up to the merchants and citizens generally to devote one day in the year to join the people without whom we have no towns, no day's recreation out of the 365. I had the pleasure of attending a meeting called for the purpose of discussing the advantages of appointing a publicity commissioner for Red Deer and could not but admire the patriotic spirit of many of our business men who advocated the spending of from $3,500 to $4,000 for the purpose of advertising the many advantages of our town and surrounding country. I am in favor of publicity, well knowing that the merchant who does not advertise his wares, the town or country that does not advertise its advantages, must surely lose a back seat. Red Deer has had a very prosperous year and the brightest of prospects for the future, therefore let us show our appreciation of those who have assisted in our prosperity, by expending a small portion of the $4,000 which we did not use in advertising ourselves abroad, by entertaining our friends at home, and I guarantee that the money thus expended will be returned a hundredfold.

Let our member, our mayor our council, board of trade and citizens generally take hold of the matter, and at once, with a determination to make Red Deer the most attractive place in which to spend July 1st, 1910. Let us enter into the matter with no selfish motives, but with a determination to make it a day of enjoyment to be remembered by our friends, and when it is past we will lie down with a pleasing sense of duty well performed, but should we, through neglect or apathy, allow the day to pass by without a celebration we will surely regret it when too late. The time for making the necessary preparations for a proper celebration of the day is all too short, and it is up to all citizens having a proper pride in our town to at once take hold of the matter and work with a determination to make the coming holiday the best ever.

A traveller in our office the other day, who is considerable of a speculator, and who knows the west like a book, in speaking of a certain town in which he had recently disposed of his last holding—said significantly "it is a splendid town in which to sell at present" but added "Red Deer is the best town in the West to-day in which to buy."

This is the testimony of scores of visitors to our town, and is becoming an accepted truth all over this fair province. "10,000 population for ours in 1910." That is the prediction of one of the sanest newspaper men in Alberta.

THE VAN SLYKE BREAKING PLOW.

The Van Slyke Breaking Plow Co. will commence the manufacture of what is known as "The Van Slyke Breaking Plow" in Red Deer. An electric plant is being installed, which will run day and night to satisfy the increasing demand. There are now considerably over one hundred plows ordered, comprised of four horse, six horse and steam outfits. These outfits are distributed in many towns, Wetaskiwin, Stettin, Delburne, Fenelon, Olds, Innisfail and Lacombe.

The Advantages of this Sulky Plow are:

- 1.—Breaks brush land, pebble and timothy. Furrows never turn back or kink.
- 2.—The draft of the plow is fully one-third less than other plows on the market.
- 3.—Guaranteed to scour gumbo land.
- 4.—It works well in stony land by change in counter.
- 5.—Much more durable than other plows as it is constructed of solid steel.

Farmers will not be consulting their own interests if they do not look into this proposition before purchasing elsewhere.

FIVE YEARS OF LIBERAL RULE.

(Calgary Herald.)

The preposterous claim is being made that Premier Sifton is entirely absolved from responsibility for the acts of his predecessors and is entitled to an independent lease of power. This argument is being advanced by the zealous Liberal newspapers of Alberta. It is a comfortable doctrine and one which, applied with due discrimination and care, would keep the Liberal party in power continually no matter how many or flagrant its misdeeds.

All you have to do is to go ahead and misgovern the country as much as you like. Then when the people are in a state of revolt at your iniquities, you simply shift premises and go right ahead doing the same thing over again. All you need is an elastic conscience, a willing candidate for the premiership and an accommodating lieutenant governor who is more concerned in saving the life of a political party than in administering the province on constitutional principles.

What a parody on representative government, by which the people are supposed to choose their own rulers and to turn them out at will.

Alberta's political history shows a province that was sold body and bones to the federal government. As a reward for delivering it the conspirators received gifts of office and power. They were made cabinet ministers with control of large public funds. All they had to do in return was to sacrifice the lands, timbers, minerals and fisheries of the people. How small a consideration for so great a reward!

They went ahead and governed the province for five years, during which time they ran six million dollars into debt, misused its funds, divided its people into factions, feathered their own political nests, and ended up by making the most scandalous railway deal in the history of Canada.

Then what happens? The people being aroused to fury, its rulers deem it wise to get out, so they send in their resignations and the lieutenant governor, without consulting the public, without insisting on an election, without considering other political parties, calls down from the supreme court bench of the country its chief official, and puts him in to save the party. And that gentleman takes office without first repudiating either the policy, or the actions of his predecessor. As far as the public is informed, he is there to carry on in principle if not in detail the same policy as has up to date been pursued by the party he represents.

What a convenient thing if by such an ignoble shuffle the slate could be cleansed, the party purified and its record wiped from the public mind. But such is not the way of free countries. According to our constitution Premier Sifton is the leader of the Liberal party, represents its policy and assumes responsibility for its actions. Alberta is not an autocracy, where one man may rule. It is governed on the alleged principles of a party which that one man merely represents.

Five years of Liberal rule have done enough for Alberta to keep her busy recovering herself for five years more. No divine mandate rests upon Premier Sifton to free him from the stigma which attaches to its record. The people will only be safe when they have swept the whole brood from office, no matter under what name or leadership they gather.

No "Flying Start" required with this Mower

If your mower isn't a Frost & Wood, very likely you have to get a "flying start" before the knives will cut. That is because it is made on the External Gear principle.

Now, with the Frost & Wood No. 8 Mower the knives commence cutting the instant the horses begin to move. That is because the No. 8 is designed on the Internal Gear principle.

The BLACK BAG

In a period of time surprisingly short Kirkwood saw, from fleeting glimpses of the scenery to be obtained through the reeling windows, that they were "treading the outside of the town. Synchronously, whether by design or through actual inability to maintain it, the speed was maintained, and in the course of a few more minutes the cat stopped definitely.

Kirkwood clambered painfully out, shook himself together and the harness out of his bones and looked back. Aside from a slowly settling cloud of dust, the road ran clear as far as he could see to the point, in fact, where the town closed in about it.

He had won at all events himself as to win meant ending the persevering Mrs. Hallam that to what end? Abstractly he tendered his lovely sovereign to the driver and without even looking at it crumpled the heavy weight of change into his pocket, an oversight which not only won him the awe-struck admiration of the cabby, but entailed consequences (it may be the little apprehension) it was with an absentmindedness that he acquiesced in the man's announcement that he might arrange about the boat for him, accordingly the cabby stopped, and Kirkwood continued to stare about him eagerly, hopefully.

He stood on the pier of the Thames estuary, there a possible five miles from shore to shore. From his feet almost a broad shining beach sloped gently to the water.

On one hand a dilapidated picket fence enclosed the doorway of a fisherman's cottage, or, better, bove-if it need be accurately described as a "cave," the doorway of which was a narrow slit, and a small distance offshore a fish boat, cat rigged and not more than twenty feet long, was bobbing at her mooring, keen nose searching into the wind, at sight of which Kirkwood gave thanks, for his adventurous guide had served him well, if that boat were to be tried by any manner of persuasion.

But it was to the farther reaches of the estuary that he gave more prolonged and most anxious heed, scanning narrowly what shipping was there to be seen. Far out a liner was riding the waves with serene composure, making for the river's mouth and Tilbury dock. But a single sailing vessel of any notable tonnage was in sight, and when he saw her he knew that he had come buoyant with hope, and he began to tremble with nervous eagerness, for he believed her to be the Althea.

There's no mistaking the ship, brigantine rigged for any other style of craft that sails the seas.

Voices approaching brought him back to shore. He turned, resuming his mask of sanity, the better to confer with the owner of the cottage and boats, a heavy, keen-eyed fellow, ungracious and untrusting of habit and chary of his words as he promptly demonstrated.

"I'll hire your boat," Kirkwood told him, "to put me and my trunk on the line off to leeward. We ought to start at once."

The fisherman shifted his guld of tobacco from cheek to cheek, gazed intently at him, and swung deliberately on his belt, displaying a bull neck above a pair of fishy shoulders.

"Dirty weather," he muttered, feeling back from his survey of the eastern skies before the American found out whether or not he should resent his insolence.

"How much?" Kirkwood demanded curtly, annoyed.

The man hesitated, glancing blackly at the bell, read momentarily in his creasing, his distance from the shore. Then, with a crafty smile, "Two pun," he declared.

The American nodded. "Very well," he agreed simply. "Get out your boat."

The fisherman turned away to shame his noisily over the shingle, bare boots heels crunching, toward one of the dorries. To this he set his shoulder, shoving it steadily down the beach until only the stern was dry.

Kirkwood looked back for the last time, up the road to Sherness. Nothing moved upon it. He was glad of Mrs. Hallam, if face to face with a sterner problem. He had a few pennies or 10 shillings in his pocket and had promised to pay the man four times as much. He would have agreed to ten times the sum demanded, for the boat he must and would have. But he had neglected to conclude his bargain, to come to an understanding as to the method of payment, and he felt more than a little dubious as to the reception the fisherman would give his proposition, sound as he (Kirkwood) knew it to be.

In the background the cabby loomed, graved by insatiable curiosity. The fisherman turned, calling over his shoulder, "If ye'd catch you see, come!"

With one final twinge of doubt—the task of placing this surly dog was anything but inviting—the American turned to the boat and climbed in, taking the stern seat. The fisherman shoved off.

In time the dory lay alongside the catboat, the fisherman with a guileful hand grasping the latter's gunwale to hold the two together. With some difficulty Kirkwood transhipped himself, landing, as might be expected, in a tangle of cordage slippery with scales. The skipper followed, with clumsy expert the rubbing the dory's plaiter with him and hitching it to the catboat's brigger head. Then, pausing an instant to stare into the east with somber eyes, he slipped the tiller and bent to the halyards. As he sailed up, dapping wildly, Kirkwood marked with relief, for it meant so much time saved, that it was already close noon.

But when at last the boom was uprunning overhead and the halyards had been made fast to their cleats the fisherman again stood erect, peering distrustfully at the distant wall of cloud.

Then, in two breaths, "Can't do it," he decided, "not at the price."

"Why?" Kirkwood stared despairingly after the brigantine, that was already drawn far ahead.

"Danger," growled the fellow—"wind."

"At a loss completely," Kirkwood found no words. He dropped his head, considering.

"Not at the price," the sullen roter iterated, and he looked up to find the cunning gaze upon him.

"How much, then?"

"Five pun I'll have, no less, for riskin' my life this day."

"Impossible. I haven't got it."

"Five pun I'll have, no less, for riskin' my life this day."

chor tripped and he got it in.

Immediately he leaped back to the stern, fired in the air, and, solving the maulscrew, drew the boom in till the dory should catch it, the canvas, in the wind the skipper, leading at his pace, was not two yards astern.

He was hard aboard when, the cat sailing with a bang, Kirkwood pulled himself up.

An Easy Case

William P. Sheridan, a "detective" with the camera eye, was discussing insurance frauds in New York.

A very easy case, said Mr. Sheridan, smiling, "grew out of a conversation overheard by a friend of mine on a train."

"Two elderly business men sat side by side in front of my friend. Suddenly the first put down his paper, looked and said:

"By the way, how did you make out about that fire of yours last Sunday?"

"Shut up, you fool!" the other muttered. "It's next Sunday."

"H'm!" said Mr. Wickwire, "there is a great story in this paper. It appears that a man advertised for a boy, and the same day his wife presented him with twin sons. It does not show the value of advertising, what does it show?"

It shows that if he confided his business affairs to his wife, as a man ought to, he might have saved the expense of the advertisement," answered Mrs. Wickwire.

WHAT NEXT?

Almost as soon as the new Sifton government had been selected trouble seemed to start up from unexpected quarters to bother them.

E. H. Riley, M.P.P. for Gleichen, resigned his position in the house as a protest against the way things are being run by the machine in Alberta. He claims every Liberal in the House will be expected to stand by the Sifton administration, when not a single member even knows what its policy will be regarding the Alberta and Great Waterways railway deal. He contends a report should have been received from the commission before the high handed measure of compelling the government to resign had been resorted to. He protests against Duncan Marshall being taken into the new cabinet, and he has many sympathizers in the province. What the next move will be it is hard to say. Other members may resign and still further complicate matters. An appeal to the people seems the only way out of the difficulty.

The acceptance of the Premiership of Alberta by Chief Justice Sifton is another example of the political character of the judiciary under the Laurier Government. Mr. Sifton was supposed to have gone out of politics when he ascended the bench. But such obviously was not the case. He sat on the bench and was at the call of his Ottawa masters. Now, in answer to their demand, he steps down and leads the local party for them. In all probability he has an agreement with Sir Wilfrid Laurier under which, as a reward for his services, he will receive another judicial appointment later on. This sort of thing is bad. It destroys public confidence in the bench, because it proves that the judiciary is not absolutely removed from politics. —Toronto Mail.

METHODIST CONFERENCE OF ALBERTA.

The general session of Conference opened Thursday morning, Rev. C. H. Huestis, President, in the chair.

Rev. A. R. Aldridge, Wetskiwin, secretary of Conference, was elected President on the first ballot, receiving 44 votes out of 80. Mr. Huestis stood next highest for re-election. Rev. W. K. Allen, of Springvale, Red Deer, was elected Secretary of Conference on the first ballot, receiving 42 votes out of 76. Rev. E. J. Hodgkins, of Vermilion, stood second.

Rev. G. G. Webber, Okotoks, and T. D. Jones, Frank, were appointed assistant secretaries, Rev. W. E. Galloway, Calgary, was appointed Statistical Secretary and Rev. W. J. Haggith, Banff, Journal Secretary.

At the afternoon session on Thursday a motion was passed asking the general conference to give the Alberta conference power to divide into northern and southern conferences when the Alberta conference deems it advisable.

The general conference will be memorialized to authorize the establishment of a preparatory school at Calgary under the direction of the church amendment. A site of 30 acres has been offered at Calgary. This evening the reception of the young men into the ministry was moved by Rev. A. S. Tuttle and Mr. McDonald.

At the meeting of the conference this morning, the invitation of Central church, Calgary, to hold the conference of 1911 in that city was accepted over the invitation from the McDougall church, Edmonton.

The memorial committee favored the meeting of the general board of missions in Calgary in 1911.

The changes were adopted and will be sent on to the general conference, save that the proposed division of conference will be further discussed. At Thursday night's session addresses were given by Rev. J. A. Doyle, western secretary of the Epworth Leagues and Sunday Schools, who urged greater organization, more efficient training of ministers and teachers in Sunday School work, an extension of the field workers force and more definite ethics and action and teaching in leagues.

Mr. J. A. Fowler, of Wetskiwin, spoke for religion in schools. Mayor McKee gave an address of welcome. The memorials presented from districts ask a change in the superannuation fund regulations, for greater conference autonomy in home mission work, the appointment of a conference evangelist or evangelistic campaigns, the holding of college examinations earlier so as to get the students on the mission fields earlier in the summer, the institution of a summer school in the north, that special training in Sunday school work form a recognized part of the college course for probationers and candidates, and that the attorney-general's department be asked to enforce the Lord's Day Act with to Sunday farm work and Sunday games in the south. A resolution was passed favoring a preparatory school at Calgary, which was referred to the committee.

Solheim District

(May 30th).

The hot days of last week, together with the local showers, have done much towards the advancement of the growing crops, which are now making a splendid showing.

Joe Roche, of Evans, was a business visitor here on Saturday last.

Wm. Rodgers was down from his homestead near Leslieville on Sunday last.

Mr. Noble, of Penhold, has taken the contract for building the Ridgewood schoolhouse. We understand the building is to be thoroughly modern and up-to-date, and hope it will not fail to pieces as the School Board did.

Miss L. Husey and Miss E. Millward, of Evans, were visiting friends here on Sunday last.

Miss Cecy Sigurdson is home again after spending some time in Red Deer.

Lachie Kennedy was out at Castor for a few days last week.

Wm. Rodgers, Sr., is improving the appearance of his farm by erecting quite a fine implement shed.

Henry Reinhold is doing quite an extensive amount of business at breaking up the productive soil of this district. He has just completed a contract for E. Clements.

Quite a number from here attended the celebration at Evans on the 24th. All report having had a very pleasant time, besides being a most successful day for Evans.

Chas. McCune has been under the doctor's care for the past two weeks, the result of blood-poisoning in his hand, but he is now on the way to recovery.

The Provincial Exhibition

The Provincial Exhibition to be held at Calgary June 30th to July 7th is going to excel any previous effort made in Canada west of Winnipeg. Some of the prominent features will be:

A mechanical milking machine demonstration, with instructive lectures.

An acre yield competition, in which all the grain grown on an acre must be shown, and for which practically $1000 is offered in prizes. This feature promises to be a great success.

An exhibit showing the different grades of commercial steers.

An exhibit illustrating the process of grading up by the use of purebred stallions.

Actual forestry demonstration by the Dominion Tree Planting Division on a large plot on the grounds.

An art and china loan exhibit composed of the best pictures and china from the homes of residents of Western Canada. Many families have articles of great value brought from their former homes, and you will be surprised at the magnificence of the display. If you have any article of merit that you are willing to exhibit, the manager of the exhibition will appreciate it if you will let him know.

All freight rates are refunded on exhibits originating in Alberta.

The best music and attractions that can be secured, including the famous Navassars Ladies' Band.

Entries for the exhibition will close June 18th at Calgary.

Make up a party of your friends and enjoy a grand holiday.

Killing Dandelions.

Red Deer lawns are in danger of being ruined by the dandelion pest, the blossoms of which are now scattering seed. There is no excuse for the continuance of this evil, as they can be effectively destroyed by spraying with iron sulphate in the proportion of 1.25 lbs. of iron sulphate to 1 gallon of water. It is most successfully applied in the form of a fine mist by the use of an ordinary spray nozzle but the sprinkling pot answers. Usually three sprinklings about three weeks apart is sufficient. The sulphate does not injure grass, but is injurious to clover. With so simple a solution of the dandelion problem is there any reason why Red Deer lawns should not be protected from this nuisance?

Leslieville.

Mr. Allen, of Toronto, has come out to teach the Beaver Flat school.

A few days ago a number of the people of Bethel Union church held a bee and cleaned up the cemetery, clearing, ploughing, and seeding it all in one day.

The residents of Prairie Rose school district held a meeting recently, at which it was decided to start an organ fund to buy an organ for the school. A committee of entertainment was formed to get up concerts and socials, the members of which are: Pres., Miss A. Patterson; Sec.-Treas., Miss Mabel Reilly; and Mrs. F. Hart, Mrs. Kirk, Messrs. J. A. Duke, R. O. Wright and Wm. Blair.

Mr. and Mrs. Rose Ordons have returned from Sylvan Lake, where they have been for two weeks.

Settlers are thronging in every day.

Remember the sports on July 1st.

Evarts News.

Evarts, March 26, 1910. I, Herman Matson, hereby certify that Dick Bley conducted a sale by auction for me on April 10th, 1909, and paid me every cent due to me and I have no claim whatever against him up to this date.

I make this statement in consequence of a report having been made that he had not paid me the full amount.

(Signed) Herman Matson

Witness, Alfred Millward.

To whom it may concern:

I, Oscar Salomon, of Evarts, in the Province of Alberta, hereby apologize and retract all and any slanderous statements I have ever made against Richard Bley, to the effect that he, Richard Bley, would have got away with $100 of Herman Matson's. In making such statement I was simply repeating what had been told me by one, August Johnson, of Evarts, a Finlander. I have, since making the said statement, made inquiries and seen Mr. Bley's books so far as they refer to said Matson's sale and am satisfied that the said statement was untrue.

Dated at Red Deer this 1st day of June, 1910.

(Signed) Oscar Salomon.

Witness, W. E. Payne.

Eckville

A surprise party was given at the home of Auctioneer Welch last week. It surprised many more than Mr. Welch, as few knew of it till the day after.

A slight snowfall gave the required moisture to the ground, no bad results have been noted.

Mr. Lyons preached here last Sunday. Arrangements have been made whereby there will be a service in the schoolhouse every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock during the summer. Rev. A. Patstone will be unable to attend on the 12th as announced, Mr. Widen will take his place on that day.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Killik and Ralph and Miss Patterson were guests of Mrs. Eckford last Sunday.

Mi-o-na

Relieves Stomach Misery

Almost Immediately.

If the food you ate at your last meal did not digest, but laid for a long time like lead on your stomach, then you have indigestion and quick action should be taken.

Of course there are many other symptoms of indigestion, such as belching up of sour food, heartburn, dizziness, shortness of breath and foul breath, and if you have any of them, your stomach is out of order and should be corrected.

Mi-o-na tablets have cured thousands of cases of indigestion and stomach trouble. If you have any stomach distress, Mi-o-na will relieve instantly.

But Mi-o-na unlike most so-called dyspepsia remedies, does more than relieve; it permanently cures dyspepsia or any stomach trouble by putting energy and strength into the walls of the stomach, where the gastric juices are produced.

A large box of Mi-o-na tablets costs but 50 cents at Gaetz-Cornett Drug Store and are guaranteed to cure or money back. When others fail, Mi-o-na cures. It is a product of flesh when the body is thin; it cleanses the stomach and bowels; purifies the blood and makes rich red blood.

HYOMEI
(FRAMINGHAM HYGIENE-ME)

CURES CATARRH, ASTHMA, Bronchitis, Croup, Coughs and Colds, or money back. Sold and guaranteed by Gaetz-Cornett Drug Co.

CHAPTER XVI.

LEANING against the coming feet, braced upon the slippery and treacherous deck, Kirkwood clung to the rail and maintained position ahead with anxious eyes, a picture of daring danger deep between his brows.

A half to westward, three or more ahead, he could see the brigantine standing close in under the Essex shore. At times she was invisible again he could catch merely the glint of her canvas, while against the dark gloom of the littoral, toned by a mist of flying splinters, he strained his eyes, watching for the chance which would take place in the race of her masts and sails when she should come about.

For the longer that unceasing was deferred the better was his chance of attaining his object. It was a further hope. But as the brigantine came on, to escape Marlin's snare, he was forced to tack and stand out past the lights, the wind off her port bow. Then there was a lull in the current. It remained to be demonstrated whether the catboat was actually in advance of its point of contact with the larger vessel.

He watched the catboat anxiously, quick to approve her merits as she displayed them. He had sailed the craft before—frail centerboard catboats, handy and swift, built to serve in summer winds and protected waters, never such a one as this. Yet he liked her.

Offshore, too, the wind stormed with added strength or possibly had freshened. For minutes on end the leeward gunwales would run green, and now and again the screaming, pelting squalls that scoured the estuary would hurl her over until the water cascaded in over the lee coaming, and the rudder, lifted clear, would hang idle until, smitten by some racing billow, the tiller would be all but torn from Kirkwood's hands. Again and again this happened, and those were times of trembling. But always the catboat righted, shaking the clinging waters from her and swinging her stem into the wind again, and there would follow an abbreviated breath of spell. During which Kirkwood was at liberty to dash the salt spray from his eyes and search the wind hurried water for the brigantine. Sometimes he found her, sometimes not.

Long after he had expected her to be about, and they began to close in upon each other, the catboat that even with shortened canvas was staggering drunkenly under the fierce impacts of the wind. For himself, it was up and tuck now, and no man in his normal sense would have risked a step on the boat's canvas to live until she crossed the brigantine's bows.

Time out of reckoning he was forced to kneel in the swimming cockpit, steering with one hand, using the ball-dish with the other, and with his eyes religiously turned to the bulgy patch of sail. It was heart-breaking. He began reluctantly to concede that it could not last indefinitely. In his hand he held a small bottle of brandy and he fondled tenderly a squat brandy flask whose contents had apparently been employed as a first aid to recovery.

As Kirkwood's gaze encountered his the man smiled sorrowfully, jerking his head to one side with a singularly delicate air.

"Hi, minter?" he blurted. "Ow goes it now? Peetin' apier, eh?" "Some," Kirkwood eyed him sheepishly. "I suppose you're the man who threw me that line? I've to have to thank you properly."

"Don't mention it." He of the lantern jaw pocketed the bottle away with jealous care in one of his immense coat pockets and seized Kirkwood's hand in a grasp that made the young man wince. "You're safe enough now. My name's Stryker, Cap'n's Willyam Stryker. What's the row? Lookin' for a friend?" he demanded suddenly as Kirkwood's attention wandered.

"Yes, your assistance. I presume they're below."

"Passenger?" "Where's Miss Calendar?" he asked, during which Kirkwood sought Stryker's eye in pitiful pleading, and Stryker looked round him blankly.

the supreme moment now at hand. Calculating the instant to a nicety, he paid off the sheet and pulled up the tiller. The catboat pivoted on her bows, close that the bowsprit of the latter threatened to ignite the rail; next, the bows pivoted, crashed down a bare two feet behind the catboat's stern.

Working in a frenzy of haste, Kirkwood jammed the tiller hard, bringing the cat about, and, trimming the mainmast as best he might, found himself racing under the brigantine's leeward quarter, water pouring in generously over the cat's.

Lifting, he edged nearer, handling his craft as though intending to run the larger vessel, foot by foot, along the littoral interval. When it was four feet he would risk the jump. He crawled out on the overboard, crouching low, one hand laid upon the tiller, the other touching the deck, ready—ready.

Almost the Althea's butt off the wind, the sail flattened and the cat dropped back. In a second the distance had doubled. In another Kirkwood uttered an exclaiming after cry. Already he was falling far off her counter.

A shout reached him. He was dimly conscious of a dark object hurtling through the air. Into the cockpit, splashing, something dropped—a coil of rope. He fell forward upon it into water eighteen feet below. For the first time realized that but for that line he had gone to his drowning in an other salute. The cat was sinking.

As he scrambled his foot, clutching the life line, a heavy wave washed over the waterlogged craft and left it all but submerged, and a smart tug on the rope added point to the danger, reaching his ears to a bellow like a bull's, penetrated the panic of his wits.

"Jump, you fool!" In an instant of coherence he saw that the brigantine was lifting. None the less, the cat was already sinking, and there was no room when the end would be reached. Without time to make it fast he bled the rope and the cat was sinking, once round an arm, and grasping it above his head to ease its constriction when the tug should come, leaped on the rope and the cat was sinking, once round an arm, and grasping it above his head to ease its constriction when the tug should come, leaped on the rope and the cat was sinking.

IN PAIN FOR YEARS

"FRUIT-TIVES" BRINGS RELIEF

Franklin, Ont., Sept. 27, 1909.

"I suffered for years from headaches and pain in the back, and I consulted doctors and took every remedy obtainable without any relief. Then I began taking 'Fruit-Tives', the famous fruit juice tablets, and this was the only medicine that ever did me any real good. I took several boxes altogether, and now I am entirely well of all my dreadful headaches and backaches."

"I want some nice note-paper," murmured the blushing damsel, the girl-haired stationer brought forth a box. "This is very nice," she said, and she rather nicely agreed to the girl.

"I'll have a hundred sheets," she said. "And some nice envelopes to match?"

"And when does the wedding take place?" inquired the stationer. The girl colored. "Why," she exclaimed, "the old man. 'Do you think I have not known that when a young lady buys a hundred sheets of paper and only twenty-five envelopes, there must be something in the wind!'"

FUNERAL OF THE LATE KING.

The Peacemaker Laid to Rest.

BODY IS LAID AT REST

Thousands Bare Heads as King Edward's Bier Passes.

Great Crowds Line the Streets as Magnificent and Impressive Pageant Goes Past—The Greatest Funeral Honors Ever Paid to a British Monarch—Nine Crowned Heads in the Procession.

Emperors, Kings and Princes and representatives of the powers of all the world paid last tribute Friday to England's great monarch, Edward VII., whose body now rests in St. George's Chapel at Windsor Castle, where the bones of Edward IV., the sixth and eighth Henrys, Charles I., the third and fourth Georges and William IV. are entombed.

Bright sunshine followed a night of thunderstorms that swept the city and soaked the funeral decorations of royal purple, the half-masted flags and wreaths of evergreens and flowers that hung along the line of march, but had no deterrent effect upon the gathering thousands, who from midnight until dawn sought points of vantage from which to watch the passing of the cortege.

The morning was clear and a hot sun beat upon the great masses of humanity that lined the route of the procession. It is doubtful if so many people were ever before seen in London. At the Mall, in St. James street, and at Hyde Park, the throng almost overwhelmed the procession.

The police and soldier had to fight to prevent the lines of people from being swept away by the crush. There were many broken hubs and other injuries were received. Hundreds of persons fainted more especially at the sight of the monarch who had been standing on the pavement for hours before the procession left Westminster Hall.

Glorious Spectacle.
All the pageantry that marked the burial of Victoria was as nothing compared with the magnificence of yesterday's spectacle, which, though it passed through the streets of a hushed people, reverently bent, was splendid in its accompaniments of gilded coaches, brilliant uniforms and decorations.

For surpassing the ceremony attending the removal of the body of the late monarch from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Hall, the procession yesterday included an almost unbroken line of theirs to several thrones, the members of the royal family, the officers of the household, field marshals, generals and admirals whose names are synonymous with Britain's achievements in war; detachments of troops of all the British army, and representatives of foreign armies and navies in varied uniforms, a solid phalanx of glittering colors.

Queen Mother's Last Look.
At Westminster Hall the widowed Queen, going to spend a last few minutes beside the body of the King, was assisted from her carriage by the German Emperor. The Emperor kissed the hand and cheek of Alexandra, and passed her to her son, King George. Here the Queen Mother caught sight of the King's carriage, waiting to follow his master to the bier, and near at hand the King's favorite dog, led by a girl, and she faltered, gripping the arm of the King and pathetically gazing upon the animal Edward had loved so well. Then she entered the hall with King George, Emperor William and the Duke of Connaught, there to offer a silent prayer and watch the removal of the coffin to the gun carriage.

The order of precedence in the procession was governed by kinship as related to the position of the sovereign.

From Paddington station the royal train carried the coffin and mourners to Windsor, where special trains were filled with officials and foreign representatives. Blue-jackets dragged the coffin from the train and carried it through a line of purple to St. George's Chapel, and there simple services were said by the Archbishop of Canterbury and King George, assisted by other princes.

King George, with a few ladies, walked up the nave behind the coffin, with the Duke of Devonshire, the Duke of York, the Duke of Gloucester and Emperor and Queen Mary following.

The coffin, borne by Grenadier Guards, was placed on a purple catafalque before the altar, and the fair burial place in floral pieces. The Lord Chamberlain and the Lord Steward took positions at the right of the catafalque. King George, as the chief mourner, stood at the head of the catafalque. His Majesty's bodyguard of gentlemen of arms stood at the left of the bier with axes reversed. The funeral party filled the edifice and overflowed into the palace courtyard chapel to the south.

There was a moment of profound silence when positions had been taken and then the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Bishop of Winchester advanced to the altar. The choir chanted "Man that is born of woman," and the congregation recited the Lord's Prayer, accompanied with music.

land was followed throughout. The anthem, "How Blest Are They," was sung. The choir then sang "The Lord's Prayer," and the congregation recited the Lord's Prayer, accompanied with music.

erectly erected stands, filled to their capacity with black garbed humanity. By arrangement between the Westminster City Council and the Westminster Borough Council, the official signs of mourning along the route were uniform. Velvetian masts with laurel wreaths at their tops had been erected at intervals.

The route was lined with thousands of troops, behind which were massed countless thousands of people in deep black, on the pavements below, and the house fronts above, with the balconies, windows and roofs crowded.

Military Represented.
Every branch of the defensive forces of the Empire was represented in the long columns which preceded the gun carriage. An officer of the headquarters staff, mounted, headed the procession with the bands of the household cavalry. The territorial and colonial units followed in the rear.

The Royal Marine Infantry and Artillery and naval representatives came next, with the military attaches of the foreign embassies, the officers of the headquarters staff of the army, the Royal Engineers, Garrison, Field and Horse Artillery, cavalry of the line and regiments of Household Cavalry.

At Windsor almost the entire procession was repeated. A striking feature of the occasion was that the royal mourners walked instead of riding on horseback. The royal carriage followed the gun carriage from the station to St. George's chapel.

About the station and without the grounds great crowds were gathered. Like those of London, they bared heads as the coffin passed.

A Liberal on Strike.

It will be remembered that during the Budget debate in the recent session of the House of Commons Dr. Michael Clark, of Red Deer, went on strike against a cherished feature of the policy of the Liberal Government. He attacked Mr. Fielding's argument in support of bounties, and treated it with the utmost disrespect.

Mr. Fielding had drawn an analogy between bounties on iron and steel and railway subsidies. Mr. Clark argued that this was false in three respects:

1. Iron and steel can be procured from abroad. Railways must be made in this country.

2. Subsidizing railways establishes a policy applicable to the whole nation. Bounties on iron and steel can benefit only a very few districts of the country.

3. Bounties and tariff together have the effect of making the steel rails of which the railways are built more expensive, thus making it more difficult to supply railways to the people.

Mr. Fielding looked distinctly uncomfortable while his follower thus poured contempt upon his argument.

May 22nd, 1910

To the Editor of the News,

Ever since I saw that these are truly anxious times.

To be sure we have passed safely through the "comet's tail" and rejoice in the knowledge that we are on the other side of the perilous problems. As for myself I am very much puzzled over a question I consider of public interest, viz., what course shall we pursue in regard to a certain class of men who consider themselves born leaders of men, yet lack the ability to lead a horse to water properly.

When they first arrive in a community they (especially if they are considered wealthy) wield some influence and usually succeed in worming themselves into some responsible position.

And then through lack of knowledge of prevailing customs, natural inability, gross ignorance of human nature, in that they utterly lack the reasoning power which is so necessary for the uniting of men for their common good, utterly fail to fulfill those duties imposed upon them and thereby bring those who entrusted them with their public interest into trouble and loss.

Then their removal from public office becomes a necessity and is sometimes quickly accomplished. Now comes the test, and we can see the real worth of the man. Some will fall in the rear and march quietly along with the rank and file. They can be saved. They will learn. They will improve in time and they will understand themselves and others better and become useful citizens, useful to themselves and fellow men.

And now as to the other fellow. May God guard him from near. May the influence of christian parents sustain us and may our pastor visit us and speak words of consolation. Let all family troubles cease for a time. We have a terrible trial to meet and can hope for victory only by united effort.

Angry, is he? Yes, and disappointed. With himself? Of course not; he is not to blame. It is the public. He is perfect. He has been well bred and educated, is infallible and did not err. Everybody but he is to blame. He has been snubbed. He thinks everyone is against him. What a mistake. The people only noted in defence of their own interests. But he takes it all as personal. He begins to seethe and rage. He declares he will fight the very public interest with which he was formerly entrusted.

He withdraws from all social intercourse with his neighbors. If his neighbors join their social and financial advancement he is not to mix with them but against them. If there is a picnic on July 1st he is not there. He goes alone to the river to fish. When the neighbors meet at their own and his own place of worship in memory of their late beloved sovereign he is not there, but instead he goes to a distant town for memorial if he continues thus I very much fear that when he dies his funeral must be held in some distant town if many mourners are desired.

He sees no good in his fellow men, and if he should fall off the earth very few would mourn and there would be no guess work as to where he would go.

The milk of human kindness has soured in him, his better nature has become perverted, his eyes have lost their power to see beyond his own personal interest. He has lost confidence in men, has no real respect for women, looks on God as unjust and on death as a means of escape from the lower classes. He is too cowardly to establish his honor by a bold stand for the right, too selfish to be just, too small intellectually to bother about the weightier matters of life, too contemptible to be noticed, too mean to live and not prepared to die.

Such men may be classed as the gadflies of life, calculated to annoy their betters, foment strife, spread discord, and bring misery on mankind. They are destroyers, not builders. So let them be influenced by them or even notice them.

LOYAL CANADIAN.

Miss Robertson, of the local telephone staff, was taken seriously ill last week and on Tuesday evening was removed to Red Deer hospital for treatment.—Insinifal Province.

PREVENTION OF FIRES.

How to Avoid Them by Taking Proper Precautions.

Avoid matches whose heads readily snap off. Scores of deaths and destruction of homes are traceable to this cause.

Liquid stove polishes of the kind now used are nearly always dangerous. Furniture polish should be used with great care too.

Be careful of oil burning polished floors should be burned away from the house. Neither should they be thrown back to the source, as there is danger of spontaneous combustion.

Cleaning compounds are always dangerous. Never use benzine, gasoline or like fluids in any room where there is a fire hazard. These oils are extremely volatile, and their fumes catch fire at a great distance, the flames traveling back to the source. Explosions and scattered fire are the result.

Cleaning compounds are always dangerous. Never use benzine, gasoline or like fluids in any room where there is a fire hazard. These oils are extremely volatile, and their fumes catch fire at a great distance, the flames traveling back to the source. Explosions and scattered fire are the result.

Never drape a mantle near a gas jet or a stove. Be careful that no portieres or curtains are so hung that they can blow against the flame. Many fires are due to such carelessness.

When you retire for the night see that all the doors in the house are closed. Open doors create a draft, danger from a dumb waiter may be minimized by seeing that it is tightly closed at night.

When open fireplaces are in use the bricks of the hearth should be imbedded in cement and should not rest on wood. Each hearth should have a fine wire screen shield to prevent sparks flying on rugs or carpets.

Bibles In Every Known Language.

According to the 10th report of the British and Foreign Bible Society the Bible will soon be printed in every language and dialect known throughout the world. Complete Bibles or portions of the Bible are issued each year in 418 different languages. During the year six new translations were added to the list. Besides these languages there are complete Bibles or portions of the Scriptures made in embossed type for the blind in 31 different languages.

The number of Bibles issued by the society last year was 5,000,000. Of complete Bibles there were 824,105; New Testaments, 1,116,674, and portions of Scripture, 3,059,221, making a total of 5,094,711.

The colporteurs employed in the work of distribution have an adventurous life. Last year some of them were arrested as spies in Nicaragua, others in the Philippines and others in the Philippines and beaten by Moslems in Baluchistan.

Rules on the Clermont.

At the head of regulations for the "North river steamboat" (Clermont) are the following rules which are made for order and neatness in the boat, are not to be abused, and which will be according to the letter of the law. Gentlemen wishing well to public and useful establishment, will be properly of strict justice, and the propriety of the least imposition on the purse or feelings of individuals.

One of the rules on the Clermont read: "It is not permitted for any person to lie down in his berth with his boots or shoes on under a penalty of one dollar and a half and an establishment for every berth cost if cotton was tuppence a reel."

"I thank you make me for a fool," said the schoolmaster.

"Correct; sit down!" returned the boy.—Liverpool Mercury.

Ancient Houses.

Chinamen were wholly unknown to the ancients, who had to let the smoke of their first escape through an opening in the roof. Chinamen came into the world of the household. It was in the same century that glass for windows put in its appearance. At a much later date the home comforts were very scarce. Even in gentlemen's houses the second story—where there happened to be one—was approached from the outside, the walls were bare, without varnished or plaster, their pictures being, as a rule, unrelieved by art or decoration.

House Names in Holland.

A recent traveler in that land of dikes and windmills has been at pains to make notes of the names bestowed by the Dutch merchants upon their country houses. Here are a few examples translated: "Our Contentment," "Joy and Peace," "Leisure and Happiness," "My Desire is Satisfied," "Friends and Quiet," "My Wife and I," "Not So Bad." To say the least, any one of these would seem to indicate more of the genuine sentiment of the householder than can possibly be expressed by the "Belle Vue" and "Cedar" of England.—London Mail.

The Roads of Norway.

A curious feature to travelers in the highroads of Norway is the great number of gates—upward of 10,000 in the whole country—which have to be opened by the traveler, which either mark the boundaries of the farms or separate the home fields from the waste lands, constitute considerable inconvenience and delay to the traveler, who has to stop his vehicle and get down to open them.

LOCAL & GENERAL.

Stylecraft.

Mrs. W. Piper and Mrs. Frank left a few days ago on a visit to Portage La Prairie.

Remember the meeting Friday evening to organize for Dominion Day sports, in the fire hall.

The usual Episcopal service will be held at Balmoral Sunday afternoon next by the Rev. C. W. G. Moore.

Charles J. S. Reed, late of the Windsor hotel, left yesterday on a trip to England. He expects to visit Australia before his return.

Why experiment with experiments? Get the genuine Kodak, Eastman Film, etc., at the Gaetz-Cornett Drug & Book Store.

Last week we said that Harry Wallace was going into the shoe business whereas he is going into gent's furnishings, clothing and shoes.

W. C. Cowell, Deputy Agent of the Red Deer Land Office, has received the appointment of Agent in the Lands Office at Kamloops, B. C.

Miss Nellie Hives severs her connection with the hospital staff on the 15th to take up nursing as a profession at Medicine Hat.

Togo Adlee injured his leg a short time ago and complications set in last week, causing a very dangerous wound for a time. At last report Togo was improving under the doctor's care.

Two carloads of hogs were recently shipped by Bawinheimer & Sons. They purchased a car and a half of U. F. A. hogs, paying spot cash for them. That's the way to do business.

The snow storm on June 1st was a surprise to many. It was a great blessing in disguise, about six inches of snow fell during the night. It passed away next day. The storm was general over Alberta.

The executive of the Provincial Firemen's Association meet in Red Deer to-day to complete arrangements for the annual convention and sports, which it is expected will be held about the 12th of July in Red Deer.

Bawinheimer & Sons will continue business at the old stand, as they have leased the premises for some time. It was reported that they would give up business owing to having sold the premises but this is not the case.

The Red Deer Brass Band will play on Thursday evening instead of Wednesday as stated, and will march to the Exhibition grounds to the Ball game, Alix vs. Red Deer. On Sunday they will accompany Red Deer Squadron 15th Light Horse to the Methodist church to morning service.

SELLING SPECTACLES.

That is quite easy. Anyone can do it, provided a willing purchaser is found. To properly measure a refractive error, and scientifically adjust correctly ground lenses to the eyes in such a way as to remove all discomfort of vision is, however, quite a different matter. It requires much knowledge, experience and common sense. To claim that one knows all there is to know about this or any subject is rather foolish. It is the record that counts.

Many years' successful experience justifies me in soliciting your patronage.

H. H. GAETZ, Optician.

The Gaetz-Cornett Drug & Book Co., Ltd.

Stylecraft.

Save your change for Tag Day next Saturday. For the benefit of the Hospital.

The postponed baseball game between Alix and Red Deer will be played at the exhibition grounds to-morrow night. Everybody come and see some good ball.

A picked football team from the Methodist Conference played the High School on Friday, and were defeated by 1-0. On Saturday night they played a team from the Town and in a fairly good game were defeated 3-0.

In the Town Football League the Town and School play at the exhibition grounds to-night, and a good game is expected. Turn out and help the boys. The Firemen and School play their postponed game on Friday night. Be sure to see this game.

Penhold.

Charles Hives, the first member of St. George's church to join the ranks of the Clergy, preached before a large congregation last Sunday. Mr. Hives addressed his many warm friends in feeling language, asking for their prayers and assuring them that they would ever be in his. All present are convinced that the church has gained a valuable servant and St. George's church members will follow Mr. Hives' career with affectionate interest. Every one congratulated Mr. Hives on his address, which was full of that Christian spirit which brings dignity to the Clergy.

It was decided on Saturday night that Penhold sports day is to come off on the 22nd June, when a good programme may be looked for. Look for the bills which will soon be issued.

The first league shoot took place on the 4th inst. The scores will be published as soon as they are to hand.
